MAJOR PERFORMANCE DRIVERS

While ever-changing expected tariff levels have continued to contribute to high levels of uncertainty, equity markets rallied again in the third quarter, and the three key drivers of supply chain moves out of China remain in place.

1. Increasing labor costs in China
2. Increased risk from geopolitical tensions
3. Diversification from single supplier models

While we remain confident in our long-term investment thesis, we acknowledge that the speed of the move out of China remains uncertain and that the global tariff environment remains fluid. In the third quarter, newly announced tariff levels did not consistently drive country relative performance. For example, Brazil and India both faced some of the highest U.S. tariff rates, and when compared to other emerging markets, however, Brazil posted positive returns while the Indian market fell. Indonesia and the Philippines are currently on the other end of the tariff spectrum and underperformed despite having reached relatively favorable agreements with the U.S. In this environment, we believe active management is the key to finding opportunities amid the rapidly shifting global tariff regime.

In the third quarter, the portfolio modestly outperformed the broader MSCI Emerging Markets ex-China universe. Outperformance was driven primarily by our thematic stock selection. Highlights included contributions from holdings in Taiwanese Information Technology, Indian Consumer Discretionary, Vietnamese Industrials, and Thai Financials.

Negative contributors included countries and stocks we did not hold due to lack of exposure to the Beyond China theme, including not holding South Africa and being underweight in Korea.

Performance for the year of inception is less than a full calendar year. Returns shown for periods greater than one year are on an annualized basis.
Risks: Risks associated with investing in the Fund may include: (1) Market Risk - Equities: the market price of equities may decline due to factors affecting the issuer, its industries, or the economy and equity markets generally. Declines in stock market prices generally are likely to reduce the net asset value of the Fund's shares; (2) Non-U.S. Investment Risk: the market prices of many non-U.S. securities (particularly of companies tied economically to emerging countries) fluctuate more than those of U.S. securities. Many non-U.S. markets (particularly emerging markets) are less stable, smaller, less liquid, and less regulated than U.S. markets, and the cost of trading in those markets often is higher than it is in U.S. markets; and (3) Currency Risk: Fluctuations in exchange rates can adversely affect the market value of the Fund's non-U.S. currency holdings and investments denominated in non-U.S. currencies. For a more complete discussion of these and other risks, please consult the Fund's Prospectus. Performance Returns: Exchange Traded Funds (ETFs) are bought and sold through exchange trading at market price (not NAV), and are not individually redeemed from the fund. QUARTERLY INVESTMENT REVIEW

PRODUCT OVERVIEW

The GMO Beyond China ETF seeks to deliver total return by investing primarily in equities of companies GMO believes are positioned to benefit, directly or indirectly, from the expected trend of companies diversifying their supply chains. We believe this secular trend is an attractive investment opportunity driven by a combination of increasing labor costs in China, increasing geopolitical tensions, and increasing focus on supply chain diversification.

The GMO Beyond China ETF will primarily invest in emerging market equities with the exception of Chinese securities. GMO uses a combination of proprietary quantitative and fundamental investment methods to identify emerging market equities that are well positioned to benefit from the expected trend of nearshoring. In addition, GMO will use investment methods that focus on growth, quality, valuation, and other drivers of fundamentals to further identify attractive securities.
